GENERAL CATALOGUE.

1829-1899.

CINCINNATI, O.:

PREFACE.

The last General Catalogue of Lane Seminary was issued in 1881, and was prepared by Professor Henry Preserved Smith, D.D. Several Triennial Catalogues had appeared before that date. The first attempts of the kind were made in 1847 and in 1853, in a "Catalogue of the Officers, Alumni and Students of Lane Theological Seminary, 1833-1853."

The present catalogue has for its basis the catalogue of 1881, but it has been the aim of the editor to supply information at points where the earlier one was defective. Every clue has been followed up that might lead to information concerning the dead and the living. In spite of this labor, gaps and deficiencies still remain.

In this publication the names of the graduates are placed first in the lists of the various classes. The items given are: 1. Name. 2. Place and date of birth. 3. College graduated from and the year of graduation. 4. Place and term of seminary study. 5. Date of ordination and name of the body ordaining. 6. Places and dates of ministerial (or other) service. 7. Honorary titles and the institutions conferring them. 8. Service as Moderator of General Assembly or of synods. 9. Date and place of death. 10. Publications.

In the matter of publications, the plan has been to include books only. Articles in magazines and journals, and fugitive sermons are not given.

Where the effort has failed to secure the address of a student or any accurate information about him, this is indicated by the words "History unknown."

A list of abbreviations is found at the close of the volume. The editor, who was appointed by the Faculty to perform the work of compilation, has had the valuable assistance of Mr. Matthew Henry Frank, a graduate of Wooster, who is at present a member of the Middle Class in the Seminary.

"The Lane Seminary" was formally established by a charter from the Legislature of Ohio Feb. 11th, 1829. Two weeks later, February 27th, the Secretary of the Board of Trustees wrote expressing the feelings entertained for the institution, as follows:

"From this seminary may many heralds of the Cross go forth in this Western wilderness and teach the way of life and salvation! And at no distant period may the extensive valley of the Mississippi resound with songs of salvation!"

In 1825 the General Assembly decided to establish a theological seminary for the growing populations west of the Alleghenies. Allegheny and Cincinnati were the chief competitors, and in 1827 the institution was located in the former city. The friends of the enterprise in Cincinnati, the most zealous of whom was the Rev. James Kemper, were not disheartened. To individual effort Lane Seminary owes its existence.

In 1828 Mr. Ebenezer Lane offered, for himself and his brother Andrew, one-fifth of their income for four years for the establishment of a theological seminary. The Baptists, to which body the brothers belonged, declined the offer. The Presbyterians accepted it. To the Lane gift, eventually amounting to four thousand dollars, Mr. Kemper and his family, in 1829, added the gift of sixty acres of land on Walnut Hills, on a part of which the Seminary buildings are built.

A literary department, which the charter included, was opened in November, 1829. It was discontinued by the action of the Trustees on Oct. 30th, 1834. The teachers in this department were: Rev. George C. Beckwith, Rev. Lewis D. Howell, Rev. Nathaniel L. Folsom, Rev. John Morgan, Rev. Thomas Cole, Rev. Horace Bushnell, and Dr. Thomas D. Mitchell.

Manual labor was combined with study. This was an attractive feature, and drew many students.

The theological department went into operation in 1832. Dr. Lyman Beecher delivered his first lecture in November, and with Dr. Thomas Biggs was inaugurated December 26th of that year, Dr. Beecher as President and Professor of Systematic Theology, and Dr. Biggs as Professor of Church History. A year later Prof. Calvin E. Stowe was added to the Faculty as Professor of Biblical Literature, and in 1835 Dr. Baxter Dickinson. Dr. Dickinson wrote the Auburn Declaration while he was professor in the institution. Dr. Beecher had said that the idea that he might be called to teach the best mode of preaching to the young ministry of the broad West flashed through his mind like lightning, and that it was the greatest thought that had ever entered his mind.

Attracted by the fame of Lyman Beecher, students came to the institution who were graduates of Yale, Dartmouth, Williams, Amherst, Middlebury, Bowdoin, Union and other Eastern colleges. The first class graduated in 1837, and to it belonged Henry Ward Beecher and Charles Beecher. The latter left before the completion of his studies. Under date of Dec. 13th, 1898, he writes: "Over my desk, as I write, hangs my father's portrait. Of my mother, the sainted Roxanna, we, alas, have none. Next to my Savior, I want to see her. Of her, as of him, I may say, 'Whom having not seen I love.' "

The class that would have graduated in 1836 broke up in consequence of the excitement over slavery. An anti-slavery society was organized among the students, to which such men as Theodore D. Weld and Henry B. Stanton, among the dead, belonged. When the Trustees abolished it, a number of the students left the institution, the most of them going to Oberlin.

Statistical tables will be found in the latter part of the volume.

Of the twenty-five professors (including Dr. Robert W. Patterson) who have served Lane Seminary, thirteen are dead. Five acted as Moderators of the General Assembly, New School—Dr. Dickinson, 1839; Dr. Allen, 1853; Dr. Patterson, 1859; Dr. Condit, 1861, and Dr. Nelson, 1867. Two have been Moderators of the Assembly since 1870—Professor Morris, 1875, and Professor Eells, 1877.

The charter declares the design of the Seminary to be, to "educate pious young men for the Gospel ministry," and provides "that all the professors, tutors, teachers and instructors shall be members of the Presbyterian Church in good standing, under the care of the General Assembly of said Church in the United States."
